LET'S MAKE THAT FEELING LAST

Now you've got your beautiful gallery LETS MAKE IT LAST FOREVER

One of my favourite parts of this job is delivering full galleries of amazing images that will remind you forever of your power, strength, beauty and the confidence you can have when you embrace everything that is you!

Having your photographs up as a daily reminder is a fabulous way to keep that strut going and give you a confidence boost, especially on those days when things get tough.

The professional printer that I work alongside, offers a wide range of options, including luxury prints, albums, print folios, prints on acrylic, metal and wood, as well as the more traditional framed artwork and canvases. Their offering is vast, so unfortunately I can't include it all here. But I hope that this guide gives you a few lovely options. If there is a product that you have seen elsewhere, or you'd simply prefer a different size, then please do let me know. I am more than happy to get quotes to ensure that your images are exactly as you want them.

So why get prints through me? Sadly over the years I have seen some awful attempts at recreating the artwork that I have delivered to my clients. Not all printers take care to check on screen files against the prints, machines are not looked after or calibrated correctly, and some printers even cast generic sharpening filters over images, which can really distort your artwork.

I use a trusted and award winning printer for all my clients. I have my colours carefully calibrated with their system, which means unlike other printers, the artwork I have created for you on screen will be exactly what you get when you receive your prints and wall art. The quality of their products is outstanding and I even use them for my own personal prints and wall art.

So while you may have to wait a little longer to order prints or other products with me, I can at least be sure that when you receive these, they are as beautiful as what you have seen in your gallery.

Let's talk about PRINTS, BABY

Making the investment to get your images printed by a professional will mean that your memories will last substantially longer than other high street options. The colours of your artwork will not bleach in the sun or fade over time, and the quality of the images will be the same as on screen without any changes to the colours or clarity. This is what I expect for my clients and its why I work with my third party printers.

FAQ's

Why is there an extra packaging and postage cost?

All orders are couriered from my supplier to me. This ensures security and careful handling, and as such incurs a substantial fee on each order. I then package and send on to you, once I have checked the final product has arrived as expected. This charges helps to cover both these additional costs.

Why aren't orders sent directly to me?

The orders come to me so that I can ensure that everything is 100%. I then repack with love and care, and send on to you. In the unlikely event that something should be amiss, I will take on the conversations with suppliers to get a resolution. This is all part of the work that I do for you, my clients.

Why does it take so long to get prints / artwork?

Placing an order with a third party requires double checking of all aspects of the order. I'd hate for you to receive the order and something had been missed. If I am creating wall art, albums and items that have an element of design to them, I spend substantial time curating the pages and panels to ensure that each piece/page is perfectly balanced and shows your photo off to their absolute best. This all takes time and has to be added to the work schedule I already have in place.
